

Policy Goal

Child sex trafficking is identified as a type of abuse and neglect within child protection statutes.

Child protective services are often unable to respond to or investigate cases of child sex trafficking or commercial sexual exploitation when such victimization is not included in the definition of “abuse and neglect.” Broadening the definition of “abuse and neglect” in child protection statutes to include sex trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation will permit child protective services to investigate and intervene in situations of domestic minor sex trafficking. Further, states that include child sex trafficking in their statutory definitions of “abuse and neglect” clarify state child welfare agencies’ role in providing specialized services to child sex trafficking victims as required under federal law.
